Chapter 35: All-Seeing Eyes

The years passed, and with each passing conquest, the Divine Triad grew even more powerful. Their battles with ancient forces, cosmic entities, and remnants of the Absolute Being's fragmented essence only served to refine their abilities. What they had become was far beyond the comprehension of even the mightiest of gods and constellations. Each victory etched new power into their very existence, elevating them further.

Now, a new transformation awaited them—one that would solidify their dominion over the multiverse.

The Awakening of the All-Seeing Eyes:

As the Divine Triad—Ashborn, Sung Jin-Woo, and Sung Su-Ho—sat upon their thrones in their respective castles, a strange energy began to converge. It was a force born not from their enemies but from the multiverse itself, as though the fabric of existence recognized them as its rightful rulers.

The energy flowed into their very beings, centering on their eyes, which began to emit a faint glow. Then, in unison, their gazes brightened into a radiant, piercing yellow light. The moment their vision changed, so too did their understanding of reality.

Their All-Seeing Eyes were born.

The Reach of the All-Seeing Eyes:

These glowing yellow eyes were not just a manifestation of power; they were tools of ultimate perception. From their thrones in the Umbra Citadel, Absolute Castle, and Eternis Draconis, the Divine Triad could now see every corner of the multiverse. No barrier could block their sight, no shadow could hide from their gaze, and no force, no matter how ancient or powerful, could obscure itself from their vision.

Even the Abyss, the most enigmatic and chaotic realm in existence, could no longer conceal its secrets. Sung Jin-Woo and Sung Su-Ho, while seated upon their thrones, turned their glowing eyes toward their first clones, who were locked in an eternal struggle against the constellations in the Abyss. Every detail of the harsh battles, every move of their clones, was now laid bare to them.

Simultaneously, their vision extended to Earth, where their second clones continued to safeguard humanity from the rising threat of SSS-Rank gates. The actions of these clones, their strategies, and their victories were all now as clear as day to the Divine Triad.

The Implications of Ascended Vision:

The activation of the All-Seeing Eyes had more than just practical applications. It marked a turning point in their rule over the multiverse.

1. Strategic Supremacy: The Divine Triad could now oversee every corner of their dominion and beyond. No uprising, no hidden enemy, no lost artifact could escape their sight. This rendered rebellion or concealment futile in the face of their omnipresent gaze.

2. Connection Across Realms: The bond between their main forms and their clones grew stronger. Despite the vast distances separating them, the Divine Triad could communicate and coordinate with their clones directly, ensuring that their power and influence remained unified.

3. Mastery of Reality: Their vision extended beyond the physical. They could perceive the flow of time, the weave of space, and the intricate threads of fate. The past, present, and potential futures were now within their grasp, allowing them to foresee and shape the events of the multiverse as they saw fit.

A New Era of Dominion:

As Sung Jin-Woo leaned back on his throne in the Umbra Citadel, his glowing yellow eyes scanned the multiverse with ease. The once vast and unknowable cosmos now felt like an open book, each page turning at his will. His gaze shifted momentarily to the Abyss, where his first clone unleashed a devastating attack against a new foe. A faint smile crossed his lips.

In Eternis Draconis, Sung Su-Ho observed the fiery skies of Earth as his second clone led humanity’s hunters in the defense against a monstrous horde. His voice resonated with pride, "Even in their fragmentary forms, they are unstoppable."

Meanwhile, in Absolute Castle, Ashborn's ten wings glimmered faintly as his golden eyes pierced the heart of a distant galaxy. "This power is not mere sight," he murmured. "It is understanding itself. A glimpse into the soul of creation."

Unstoppable Forces:

With their All-Seeing Eyes, the Divine Triad became more than rulers—they were now guardians of the multiverse, its ultimate architects and protectors. No force could escape their gaze, no threat could rise without their knowledge, and no hope of resistance could spark without being extinguished by their overwhelming presence.

Their thrones, already symbols of their might, now radiated with the light of their new power. From their exalted seats, they continued to expand their influence, each enemy conquered only adding to their already immeasurable strength.

The multiverse lay at their feet, and under the watchful gaze of the All-Seeing Eyes, it would remain eternally so.
